In chemistry, a solution is a special type of homogeneous mixture composed of two or more substances. The term aqueous solution is when one of the solvents is water. In such a mixture, a solute is a substance dissolved in another substance, known as a solvent. The mixing process of a solution happens at a scale where the effects of chemical polarity are involved, resulting in interactions that ...

Distinction from solubility. By an IUPAC definition, solvation is an interaction of a solute with the solvent, which leads to stabilization of the solute species in the solution. In the solvated state, an ion in a solution is surrounded or complexed by solvent molecules. Solvated species can often be described by coordination number, and the complex stability constants.

The quality of an analytical method developed is always appraised in terms of suitability for its intended purpose, recovery, requirement for standardization, sensitivity, analyte stability, ease of analysis, skill subset required, time and cost in that order.

Going for gold: The mono- and di-chloroform solvates of $[\text{Au}_2(\text{I}^{\frac{1}{2}})_1,2\text{-bis}(\text{diphenylarsino})\text{ethane}]_2(\text{AsF}_6)_2$ undergo single-crystal-to-single-crystal transformations that result in gain or loss of only one chloroform molecule and changes in the structure and luminescence of the digold cation.

Welcome to the first national meeting of the Swedish Chemical Society! The meeting brings together more than 450 persons from all directions of chemistry represented within the society and offers a program of top plenary lectures, exciting specialized parallel sessions and plenty of room for interactions with meeting participants and exhibitors between scientific sessions.
